KINGSPAN INSULATION ACQUIRES AIR-CELL INNOVATIONS

Kingspan Insulation, the world's largest manufacturer of premium and high performance rigid insulation materials, has acquired Australian company Air-Cell Innovations Pty as part of a program of expansion, growing its range of insulation technologies and extending the markets for its existing brands.

Kingspan Insulation has enjoyed consistent and substantial growth over the past decade, helped by a continuous programme of investment in market development, manufacturing capability and customer service together with astute acquisitions. Air-Cell Innovations produces a comprehensive range of thermo-reflective insulation products, and is well established in the Australian market.

To be known as Kingspan Insulation Pty, the merging of the two brands in this new venture will allow an exceptional and unparalleled range of products and expertise to be offered to the Australian market, which already enjoys a high level of quality and technical support from Air-Cell.

The Air-Cell brand will be maintained within the Kingspan Insulation range and will add a completely new dimension to the scope of products and options available from Kingspan in its traditional markets.

Peter Wilson, Managing Director of Kingspan Insulation said of the move "We are delighted to be merging these two respected brands together to create Kingspan Insulation Pty. We are looking forward to offering the Australian market some of the best insulation products available in the global construction industry, providing cutting edge technology aimed at helping to beat global warming."
